

Whole Systems, Whole People: Collaborative Family Violence Practice

This case-study-led training immerses practitioners in real-world scenarios, building practical skills for working effectively with both the Adult Experiencing Violence (AEV) and the Adult Using Violence (AUV). The package will soon be expanded to include a stronger focus on working with children and young people, aligned with the release of the MARAM Children and Young People Practice Guides.

Essentials Package

The Essentials has a strong emphasis on how to work with family violence that:

- is at the early intervention stage.
- but can be supported in the intermediate agencies with support from the comprehensive services.
- the family unit is choosing to remain together.
- the case is not significant enough to indicate statutory involvement.
- The case study will intersect with Health and/or Dep Ed
- The case study is designed to be adapted for the audiences context.

Mastery Package

The Mastery has a strong emphasis on how to work with family violence that:

- is at crisis point
- has significant serious risk factors, escalation, immienance and self assessed level of fear.
- might be identified by the intermediate services, but needs a comprehensive response.
- The relationship is unsafe to remain in.
- The case study will intersect with statutory services such as CP, VicPol FVIU and Courts.
- The case study is designed to be adapted for the audiences context.

These packages are made for anyone who holds:

- Intermediate
- Comprehensive

responsibilities within the MARAM Framework.

We are encouraging agencies to organise in house sessions (FREE to agencies) or we will be organising regular sessions.
